

Inhabitant:

"It sounds like a crazy story that someone with no money can build a house and live in it. And yet that's what it is. My colleagues would come and help me out when I was pouring concrete, and I would then help them out when they needed support. Let's just say that I didn't pay for manpower. I paid for the material that I bought day by day. My brothers used to give me a hand, as well as some strangers. That is why it was possible to do it."
